

NIGHT POLICEMAN QUILTS THE FORCE

Resignation of Philip E. Thompson is Accepted by Safety Board at a Special Meeting.

GEORGE WOLFE TO SUCCEED

Fire Chief Files His Report and Makes Several Recommendations—Four Fires Last Month.

Philip E. Thompson, after serving for more than a year and a half in the police department, filed his resignation late Tuesday afternoon and it was accepted by the board of safety at the special meeting last night. It was rumored that there was some dissatisfaction in police circles, but the direct cause of the action is said to be due to some trouble a few days ago between the officer and a citizen. The board was of the opinion that Thompson has been asked a civil question and that without cause he struck at the citizen. It is his resignation the officer made no reference to the matter, but it is reported that he has his side to the story. It is reported that the board of safety had several other things registered against the police.

The resignation filed by Thompson is as follows:

To the Honorable Mayor and the Members of the Council of Seymour:

I hereby resign my position as policeman of said city to take effect at once. Thanking you for past favors and best regards to friends and neighbors I beg to remain

Yours Truly,

P. E. Thompson.

Thompson gained considerable notoriety a few months ago for the manner in which he dealt with the lawless element and with the illegal resorts. His name was also mentioned throughout the state as the official who arrested his own brother and then paid his fine. Thompson, who is a former railroad man, expects to work in the Southwest, where he already has a position on one of the roads.

Officer George Wolfe, who was appointed sanitary inspector, a short time ago by the city health board, was appointed to fill the vacancy made by Thompson's resignation. Mr. Wolfe will serve part of the time as night officer and will also continue his work as sanitary inspector.

Chairman Misch reported that several complaints had been filed with him regarding the condition of the trolley wire just east of the Pennsylvania railroad on Second street and recommended that the trouble be taken up with the interurban company. The wire broke some time ago and fell to the street, but no one was hurt. There are several wires above the trolley wire, and a few days ago one of these fell to the ground. A committee was appointed to take the matter up with the traction company and have a basket constructed around the objectionable trolley.

Chief Walter Everhart of the fire department filed his report for October in which he stated that all the firemen had made full time. There were four fires during the past month with a total loss of $79.

The report of Officer Wolfe which was referred to the board of safety at the last council meeting was taken up. It was stated in this communication that in several places trees had been set out too close to the fire plugs and that they interfered with the efficiency of the fire department. The clerk was ordered to instruct the property owners complained of to remove the trees within ten days.

It was also stated in the report that the roots of the shade trees had grown under the sidewalks in many places in the city and that the walks were so uneven that they were dangerous. The board believed that this should be repaired at once and ordered the clerk to notify property owners to that effect.

Chairman Misch reported that he had received numerous complaints regarding the manner in which the Public Service Company was trimming the shade trees, and believed that more care should be exercised. Some of the councilmen were of the opinion that the light company had the right under the ordinance to trim the trees in any manner it desired, but it was stated that the ordinance provided that the work should be done in a workmanlike manner. In several places the trees have been "butchered up" by the linemen. Under the ordinance, it was stated, the company was compelled to preserve the trees as much as possible and wherever a branch was in the way of the wires it could be cut off if the proper insulation could not be made. Several large branches have been burned off recently by the electric wires, and it was to eliminate this trouble that the trees were trimmed.

DIED SUDDENLY

Frank Doughty Stricken With Apoplexy Tuesday Afternoon.

Frank Doughty, a well known citizen of Jennings county, and father of Guy Doughty, of this city, was stricken with apoplexy Tuesday afternoon at Hayden. He recently purchased a new home near Hayden and early in the afternoon went to the house to make some repairs. No one was present when he was stricken and he was not found until about 4:30 o'clock. He was still alive and was taken to his home near by but died about 7:30 o'clock.

Mr. Doughty was seventy-one years of age. He was in apparently good health and his sudden death was a shock to his many friends. He had quite a number of relatives living in Seymour and Jackson county. He was unconscious when taken to his home and was not able to answer any questions as to where he was standing when stricken. It is believed, however, that he was standing on a board supported by two lifting jacks when stricken. When found he was lying across one of the jacks.

The funeral services will be held Thursday at Hayden.

Child Dead.

C. H. Williams received a telegram about noon today stating that his niece, Nancy Helen St. John, died this morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. St. John, at Memphis, Tenn. She was about eight years old and lived in this city until about a year ago when her parents moved to the South. She had been ill for several weeks, but no information was received here that she was in a serious condition.

The remains will arrive here Thursday morning and will be taken from the depot to the Riverview cemetery for burial.

DEFENDANT TELLS STORY OF MURDER

Mrs. Maude Ping Testifies That She Does Not Remember Shooting Her Husband.

LAST DAY OF THE TRIAL

Defense Makes Effort to Prove That The Young Woman Was Not Responsible for the Crime.

In an effort to clear Mrs. Maude Ping, who is on trial at Bedford charged with killing her husband, James Ping, eight months ago, the attorneys for the defense Tuesday called a number of witnesses who testified that the young woman was of unsound mind. The defense is endeavoring to free the woman upon the grounds of emotional insanity resulting from the actions of her husband. Several witnesses testified that they saw the defendant a short time before the tragedy and that in their opinion she was worrying about her husband's actions.

Bedford the murder was committed Mrs. Ping wrote several letters in which she mentioned the action of her husband and said that she wanted to kill the woman of whom she was jealous, but "did not have the nerve." She stated in the letters that she intended to kill her husband and then take her own life. The state is endeavoring to prove that she is guilty of murder in the first degree and will use the letters to support this theory. It is expected that the trial will close today. Mrs. Ping was placed on the stand today and told her story before an interested crowd of spectators in the court room.

The testimony of the young wife was that she had seen her husband with another woman on the day of the killing. The letters were all written the night before. In one of them to Oscar Ping, her brother-in-law, she told that she intended killing herself. There seemed to be something saying to her all the time that she must kill herself. She testified something seemed to force her to do this. She obtained a revolver with which to shoot herself, but her husband took it away from her. On the evening of the killing Mrs. Ping testified that she got supper. "I tried to drink some coffee, but I could not swallow," she said. After that everything was hazy to her. She remembered her husband saying: "I guess this is my last night with you," and the wife remembers that she said: "All right; I am ready if you are," and she remembered nothing further until the next day about 9 or 10 o'clock. She did not remember that she had shot and killed her husband and had shot herself almost directly over the heart, but the bullet had been deflected and the wound was not fatal.

The first witness placed on the stand Tuesday was Mrs. Ora Adamson, who testified that she resided one door north of the residence of the Pings and that on that afternoon of the tragedy was out feeding her chickens and when she heard the pistol shots and rushed into the Ping residence where she found Mrs. Ping lying on the floor, and upon asking what had happened, was informed that she had shot herself. Mrs. Adamson further told of her calling physicians and later with the help of her daughter, Bertha, of her removing Mrs. Ping from the floor and placing her upon a bed in the room. Mayor Albert Fields was recalled and told of having turned over the letters in the case to the grand jury as soon as the indictment against the defendant was returned by that body. He said he thought she was unsound mind.

Dr. Freeland testified he was called to the residence after the shooting and of his dressing the wounds after which testimony Prosecutor Hays read the letters written by Mrs. Ping just before the shooting of her husband, one of which was addressed to "Friends", another to Oscar, a third to Mary Adamson and a fourth to "Dear Nerva."

Officer Sam Kline said he had been called to the Ping residence following the tragedy and of finding the revolver under a bed.

Mary Jones also testified that in her opinion the defendant's mind had been affected since her marriage to Mr. Ping, as a result of her troubles.

Allice Sanders told of her having known Mrs. Ping seven months previous to the shooting and said that she seemed down hearted and that when she called at the residence after the shooting Mrs. Ping did not seem inclined to talk. Mathes Ingram, livery man of Mitchell, testified of his meeting Mrs. Ping at the home of his son-in-law, Joseph Duncan, and stated that she appeared down hearted while there.

LOOKING OVER THE GROUND

Congressman Lincoln Dixon Spends The Day in Seymour.

Congressman Lincoln Dixon came over from North Vernon this morning and spent the day calling on his friends and incidentally to get the lay of the ground regarding the post office situation. He has visited Greensburg, Columbus, Madison and several other places where postmasters will be appointed and it is expected that he will make his appointments in a few days.

It was understood a few days ago that he would announce the successful candidates this week, and now that he has completed his visits to the various cities this announcement will likely be made in a short time. His friends declare that he will get the appointments off his hands before he leaves for Washington.

APPEAL IS TAKEN TO U. S. TRIBUNAL

Gov. Marshall's "Pet Constitution" Case Will Come Before The Supreme Court.

FINAL STEP OF A HARD FIGHT

Indiana Supreme Court Held That the Proposed Instrument Was Invalid—Assignment of Errors.

Indianapolis, November 27.—The new constitution case, decided by the Indiana supreme court against Governor Marshall and other prominent Democrats and the Indiana legislature of 1911, which sought to submit a new organic law to the people of the state for ratification or rejection, was appealed to the United States supreme court, yesterday, by attorneys for Governor Marshall, L. G. Ellingham, secretary of state, and the former state board of election commissioners, all of whom were defendants in the litigation last July. The Indiana supreme court held the proposed instrument invalid.

John T. Dye, plaintiff in the original case, filed against the state officials in the Marion county circuit court to prevent them from placing the proposed Constitution on the ballot, has been cited to appear in the United States supreme court and make answer to the errors charged in the Indiana court's findings within thirty days.

The appeal's assignment of errors against the decision of the Indiana supreme court charges that the decision constituted an usurpation of power by the judiciary of the state; coercion of the Governor and the executive department by a writ of injunction; the taking from the people of an inalienable right and the destruction of a republican form of government in Indiana, in that one of the three co-ordinate departments of government (the judiciary) was made superior to the other two departments (executive and legislative.)

DYNAMITE RUMORS

Heard at Bedford Are Not Believed by the Police.

It was rumored at Bedford Tuesday that a plan was on foot to destroy the city sedimentation basin which is being constructed there by Ewing Shields of this city. No credence is given to the rumors, however, and it is believed that the informer was mistaken.

The Bedford Mail gives the following story regarding the supposed plan:

The local police came into possession of a story to the effect that a plan was on foot to dynamite the new sedimentation basin being constructed for the city by Contractor Ewing Shields. According to the story told a man whose name was not given was supposed to have heard a number of men plotting to destroy the place with dynamite. The dynamite was to have been stolen from the quarries about this city.

There is little or no stock taken in the story and the police are not worrying about the matter. It is supposed that the man misunderstood the supposed plot.

WHAT YOU LOOK FOR

In a shoe. You should look, first of all, for a shoe that will meet your economical needs.

Then of course, should look for a neat appearing shoe, not overlooking comfort.

Then again, first cost must be right with assurance of a little repairs as possible.

Finally you should look for a shoe backed by a sturdy organization with ample capital, and a reputation of sufficient standing to insure your getting your demands.

It now looks like you are looking for Rice & Hutchins shoes. They meet all these demands.

BARRETT LAW BONDS

For Improved Streets Are Being Prepared by City Clerk.

City Clerk John Hauenschild is preparing the bonds for the street improvements as provided by the Barrett law. As soon as these are filled out and signed all the clerical work in connection with the new streets will be finished. The payment of the bonds may extend over a period of ten years. The installments are due annually and the interest is paid twice a year. A regular book is kept for entering the payments and interest made.

The bonds are drawn in such a way that the property improved is the security. The bonds are turned over to the contractors in lieu of cash. They are considered first class securities and are usually sold at par in case the contractors desire to secure the cash for them. Only a small per cent. of the property owners took advantage of the Barrett law and most of the payments were made in cash.

BASKET BALL GAME

Local H. S. Team Will Meet Shelbyville Boys Tonight.

The basket ball team of the Shields High School will play its first game this season with the Shelbyville high school team tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the high school gymnasium. The visitors came this afternoon and the basket ball enthusiasts are looking for a close game. The local team has been putting in some hard work at practice recently and are in good condition.

Especially interest is centered in this game as the team has been coached by J. C. Edwards, formerly of the local high school. Mr. Edwards is principal of the Shelbyville schools and is coaching the various athletic teams. The game will be played at the gymnasium which is well adapted for such contests.

LABOR LEADER GETS SETBACK

Olaf Tveitmae Rebuked By Judge Anderson.

LOST HIS FAVORABLE SEAT

Ever Since Trial of Alleged Dynamiters Began, Secretary of San Francisco Building Trades Council Had Been Seated Directly Facing Jury and Judge Anderson Became Weary of His Perpetual Smile of Derision.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—Judge Anderson surprised the attorneys and jury, while Ortie E. McManigal was under cross-examination in the dynamiting cases, by ordering O. A. Tveitmae, secretary of the building trades council of San Francisco, removed from his seat at the table of the attorneys for the defense and placed among the defendants. Marshal Schmidt complied with the order at once, and Judge Anderson said: "I have been observing his conduct for several days. He has been sitting with a smile of derision on his face when certain witnesses are on the stand, and has been making demonstrations in the courtroom." Tveitmae had been sitting since the trial began, immediately in front of the jury. He is the most widely known and most influential labor leader on the coast.

After the marshal had placed Tveitmae among the other defendants Judge Anderson continued: "I will say further that I am not going to allow demonstrations in the courtroom from that defendant, such as I have seen from him. I am serving notice on him now."

Earl Reagan of Borwyn, Ill., former superintendent for William F. Stillwell of Lafayette, who had the general contract for the erection of an addition to the French Lick Springs hotel, owned by Thomas Taggart, testified that about two weeks before the explosion there, Fred Sherman, business agent of the iron workers in Indianapolis, came to French Lick and demanded that union iron workers be employed. Reagan said the steel contract had been sublet to the Lafayette Engineering company, and he told Sherman to see the contractor. Sherman inquired, he said, if Taggart were at French Lick and was told that he was leaving on the next train.

That the only thing which prevented the explosion from wrecking the big hotel, where 500 guests were then quartered, was the fact that a new concrete floor had just been put in the addition, and that it had already "set," was testified by the witness. The explosive was placed under the floor. As the sides were open, the force of the explosion was largely exerted sideways, along the line of least resistance.

Windows in the old hotel were shattered, however, the plastering in the room in which Reagan was sleeping when the explosion took place being thrown down and the fixtures in the bathroom which adjoined his sleeping room were shattered, he testified. Immediately after the explosion, he said, union men were put to work. He said he saw Sherman at French Lick again about two weeks after the explosion.

The cross-examination of McManigal brought out little new evidence, but it demonstrated the wonderful memory of the witness. Senator Kern, examining from notes, was frequently corrected by the witness as to dates and attempts to confuse him were unavailing.

With the beginning of the ninth week of the trial United States Attorney Miller said that the indications were that the government would close its case by the last of this week or the first of next week. Senator Kern said the defense likely would take about three weeks in presenting its case. The rebuttal is then to come. Senator Kern said the case probably would be completed not later than Jan. 10, in his opinion.

No Thanksgiving holiday, as far as anyone connected with the trial is concerned, is the information given out at the federal building. With this one case tying up the business of the court for eight weeks already, every day is considered valuable, and Thursday will see the case going ahead as usual.

CLEAN MILK

Dairymen Given a Stern Tip by the State Supreme Court.

Indianapolis, Nov. 27.—The supreme court decided that a person who sells milk containing visible dirt is liable to prosecution and punishment under the pure food law. The decision reverses the Laporte circuit court in quashing an indictment against Louis F. Closser for selling milk containing visible dirt to John T. Willett, a state food inspector. The court holds that the legislature had power to classify milk containing visible dirt as adulterated milk and that it has the right to provide a punishment for violation of such a law.

Jury Could Not Agree in Case Against Lawyer Gibson.

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 27.—After being out for more than fifteen hours, the jury in the case of Burton W. Gibson reported that it was unable to agree upon a verdict, and was discharged. It now seems very unlikely that the New York lawyer will face another jury on the charge of having murdered Mrs. Rosa Szabo in Greenwood lake last summer.

The report went around the courtroom that the jury had stood 11 to 1 for acquittal.

A VASSAR COLLEGE GIRL IN NEW ROLE

Acted as Detective for Factory Commission.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 27.—A Vassar college girl of the class of 1909, Miss Mary Elizabeth Chamberlain of New York city, gave a delegation of thirty or more owners and managers of upstate canning establishments a jolt when she went on the stand before the state factory investigating commission and testified as to conditions in certain vegetable canneries of the state. The canners craned their necks to get a good look at Miss Chamberlain when she calmly told how she had been engaged by the factory commission as a private detective and investigator to make a personal tour of the canneries and ascertain for the use of the commission if reports of hardships practiced upon children and of flagrant violations of the labor law are well founded.

Miss Chamberlain told the commission that she went from one cannery to another "looking for a job," and of working at various establishments. At one cannery the witness said the timekeeper "got fresh" with her and insulted her. She gave the commission the name and address of this man.

Uncle Sam's Charge Against Book Concern.

MANY VICTIMS COMPLAIN

In Bringing Indictments Against the Kellar-Farmer Company, or Anglo-American Authors' Association, Federal Grand Jury Charges That Operators Are Guilty of Conspiracy to Sell Fake De Luxe Editions.

New York, Nov. 27.—For participating in a conspiracy to sell fake editions de luxe through the mails, eleven men connected with the Kellar-Farmer company, or as it is better known the Anglo-American Authors' association of 255 Fifth avenue, have been indicted by the federal grand jury.

Four of these men, James J. Farmer, head of the association; his son Glen Farmer; Samuel H. Scott and Colonel W. J. Hartley of the New York Athletic club, were arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields. The two Farmers and Colonel Hartley, who is one of the salesmen of the de luxe dealers, were held in $5,000 bail each for trial. Scott, who is also a salesman, was held in $2,500 bail.

Facts revealed in the trial of the $50,000 suit brought by Emma Bird, a wealthy widow of Salt Lake City, against the Farmers and the Anglo-American Authors' association, furnished the basis on which the post-office authorities conducted their investigation of the alleged book swindle, which, according to Assistant United States Attorney Boyle, almost reached the $5,000,000 mark.

One woman who is well known in philanthropic circles in this city invested $30,000 in editions de luxe and is now suffering with nervous prostration as a result of the exposures made in the suit. The federal authorities say she is in a precarious condition and the revelation of her name probably would be a death blow to her.

That the Farmers were versatile in their sales methods is shown by the manner in which they are alleged to have induced Mrs. Henry F. Durant to invest over $100,000. Mrs. Durant, the aged widow of the founder of Wellesley college, was told that the books offered for sale were indispensable to the Wellesley library. Among her purchases was an "autographed" set of Colonel Roosevelt's works which the Farmers disposed of at $22,000.

Mrs. James A. Patten, wife of the former wheat king, was induced to buy $30,000 worth of books on speculation. She was under the impression, it is alleged, that a wealthy book lover was anxious to buy these volumes from her at a figure substantially higher than that asked by the Farmers.

NOT GUILTY

This is the Verdict of the Jury in Lawrence Murder Case.

Boston, Nov. 27.—Verdicts of not guilty in each instance were returned by the jury which has been hearing the evidence at Salem against and for Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Caruso, the Lawrence strike leaders. The two former were accused as accessories to and the latter as a principal in the murder of Anna Lopez, a mill operative, during a strike riot in Lawrence on January 29.

As soon as the jury had reported its finding, Caruso was arraigned upon another indictment, charging him with assault with intent to murder. He pleaded not guilty. District Attorney Attwill said that he probably would not press the indictment. Caruso was released on his own recognizance to go free subject to the call of the court.

Ettor and Giovannitti were arraigned upon another indictment charging them and William Haywood and others with conspiracy in conducting the Lawrence strike unlawfully. Both men pleaded not guilty and were held in $500 bail each, which was furnished. All three Italians were profuse in their thanks to the jury, and some of their lawyers and friends came in for a lot of kissing. Then Ettor, Giovannitti and Caruso led the way down the street followed by about 200 people, to Salvation hall, where there was much speechmaking.

BE SUSPICIOUS OF ANY CHRONIC ULCER

Any sore that is obstinate or slow in healing should cause suspicion and put the sufferer on guard. Many an ulcer which could have been cured if it had been properly treated, in time, has been allowed to remain open until it became infected with some degenerate poison from the outside which made it a malignant, eating sore. Most old sores come from an impure and polluted condition of the blood and can be healed if the circulation is cleansed and purified of the predisposing cause. To attempt to cure a chronic ulcer with salves, washes, lotions, etc. is trifling with what may become a serious condition. S. S. S. heals chronic ulcers in a perfectly natural way. It goes down into the blood and removes the impurities and morbid matters which are the means of keeping the place open; then the sore is bound to heal. Not only does S. S. S. cleanse the circulation but it restores its healing powers, and aids in promoting the necessary qualities for good health. S. S. S. builds new flesh tissue from the bottom of the ulcer to the outer skin and makes a permanent cure. Book on Sores and Ulcers and medical advice free to all who write and request same.

BUY A FARM ON CROP PAYMENT

It is slow work buying and paying for a high price farm near Seymour. Come to Southwestern Nebraska, Dundy County, where opportunities are wider;—where good productive land can still be bought low, and upon the most favorable terms.

IN A FEW YEARS YOU WILL BE A RICH MAN and it will cost you no more effort than you are exerting now.

MY PROPOSITION:

I will sell you a good Farm on terms of one-fourth Cash, and one-half of the crop raised each year until paid, with interest at 6 per cent. on unpaid balances.

JUST A SAMPLE.

I have a splendid 160 acres, 2½ miles from town, located in a fine neighborhood, close to school. Fine black loam soil, underlaid with clay subsoil, 125 acres of which is fine tillable land, that I can sell you for $25 an acre, on terms described above. Your first payment is just about what you would pay as rent on a farm near Seymour. In two or three years your farm here will be paid for, and you will have a nicer estate to live in and will have received just as much enjoyment out of life.

If you will write me, I will send you a beautiful Illustrated Prospectus of this Region absolutely Free and will answer any questions you wish to ask.

THE BIG 400 COOPERATIVE PIANO CLUB OF MONTENEGRO-RIEHM'S IS NOW ON IN FULL SWING

SEYMOUR, IND.

Montenegro-Riehm
Piano Club

This most notable merchandising event is in full swing. Four hundred people of Louisville and the rest of Kentucky where the Montenegro-Riehm Co. have stores, are united to save $100 to $150 each in the purchase of musical instruments. We have placed an order for 400 Pianos and Player-Pianos, and these instruments are now on display at our many warerooms. We urge you to go at once to our Louisville store and examine them. We know you will be pleased with them. You will learn their splendid quality, if you do not already know it. You can't possibly ever have had an equal opportunity to buy an established high-grade instrument at such an actual saving of money.

This club is composed of 400 members. Louisville's portion of that number will soon be filled. Some tardy folks will regret they missed the chance to buy high-grade instruments at an actual saving of $100 on a piano and $150 on a Player-Piano. We know Pianos and Players thoroughly. We have sold hundreds of them during the last 14 years. They are instruments of unquestioned merit. The Piano has never sold for less than $375—often for $400. The Player has never sold for any price under $600. Note the clean, clear saving to you of $100 or $150. Note, too, the remarkable terms—$5 as membership fee if you take the Piano—then $1.25 a week; or $10 membership fee if you take the Player, and $10 a month.

Note the Attractive Club Extras

A SMALL ENTRANCE FEE is charged, which gives you all these rights and privileges. But the amount is at once applied to the price you agree to pay. Though it is the means of getting you the benefits of the club, it helps pay for the Piano or Player-Piano. This entrance fee is $5.00 if you take the piano and weekly payments are $1.25. It is $10.00 if you take the Player-Piano, with monthly payments of $10.00.

FREE MUSIC LESSONS are given to you absolutely free for one year; 52 lessons; one each week at our own private studio. These lessons if paid for by you, would cost from $1.00 to $1.50 each. By joining this big club you secure these lessons absolutely free. You can have your own piano nearly paid for before you have to spend one cent for music lessons.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT MUSIC? No home nowadays is complete and no family can gain full realization of happiness without a musical instrument of some kind, of which the piano is the most desirable and the most appropriate.

The value of a good MUSICAL EDUCATION is appreciated more and more and musical talent is now cultivated in a marked degree by people in all stations of life. It is a social accomplishment of the highest and most desirable kind and gives the possessor an individuality and a social standing that nothing else can give.

LIFE INSURANCE—This is one of the big features of club membership. It means a lot to people in moderate circumstances. It is attractive to anybody. It provides against the possibility of disappointing the conditions of a musician who might have to give up the piano. In case of the death of the purchaser of one of our Club Pianos or Players we cancel all remaining payments, if the account is not in arrears, and we give a receipt in full for the Piano or Player-Piano.

YOU MAY EXCHANGE, any time within a year, the instrument you purchase for any one in our house of equal grade, or a higher-priced instrument if you wish, without losing a penny you have paid. It is a positively free exchange privilege, if you should desire to have another Piano or Player. If you should first take the Piano and later decide to take the Player we cheerfully, without question, make the exchange.

WRITE FOR CLUB LITERATURE OR CALL AT OUR STORE AT ONCE.

NOW take the first step to become a member. We urge you to use the means that will get your name recorded soonest. Think of the very small amount that secures immediate delivery of the Piano or Player. The small payments afterwards will be very easy to meet. In case of death all remaining payments are canceled and a free title is given. Note free exchange privilege.

illegal within a year. Surely no other desirable feature can be thought of. All in addition to selling you a Piano actually $100 below its regular price and a Player $150 lower than it ever sold for before. This is truly an extraordinary Club, and a most advantageous opportunity which we are confident you appreciate. Don't delay. Join now and avoid disappointment. The books are open and the instruments are ready for immediate delivery. Call or drop us that line today.

RETIRING PARTY COMPLIMENTS

In turning over the control of the affairs of the country to another party the Republicans have the pleasure of reporting everything in solvent shape, with prosperity at high tide in all the states and outlying possessions. Another item to which attention is called by an official statement, sets forth the fact that the foreign trade of the United States for the year 1912 will pass the four-billion line for the first time. When the Dingley law was passed in 1897 it was said that the return to a protective policy would cripple our foreign trade and set the world against us to our heavy loss. What really happened was a great and general increase. Our foreign trade in 1897, the total of exports and imports was $1,810,000,000. It passed $2,000,000,000 in 1899, $3,000,000,000 in 1906, and will exceed $4,000,000,000 in the present calendar year.

This advance would have been called progressiveness before the word fell into freakish disrepute. It is enough now to refer to it as solid progress. All has occurred under protective tariffs, one of which is still in force, though shortly to be sapped and mined by a minority of voters invested with complete authority by pluralities in a three-sided fight. A majority of voters supported protective platforms in the recent contest, but this majority must go into the background for the next two years. They hand over the reins of power with an excellent record, and, what is even better, a good conscience. The Republican party does not consider the year 1912 a barren one for itself. In national convention assembled it rejected a third-term movement for the second time. It would rather stand by its principles and be defeated than go into any form of demagoguery for the sake of expediency. In two former years it was retired. But how quickly and gladly the people recalled it!—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

POOR ASYLUM

In Brown County in Bad Condition According to Report.

The state board of charities has issued a report upon the condition of the poor asylum in three counties. The institutions in Ripley and Brown counties were in deplorable condition, says the report.

The report on the Brown county asylum is as follows:

"The poor asylum in Brown county is small and poorly arranged. Proper sex separation is impossible. The equipment is inadequate. The beds are rickety and infested with vermin. Not enough chairs are provided and those in use are badly worn. In an old shed in the rear of the main building an epileptic woman has been kept for two summers.

"The roof leaks and the floor is bad. There are openings to admit light but there are no windows. Rain pours through the roof and through the openings in the side walls. The room was found in an unsanitary condition.

"Last winter the woman was locked in a cell in the basement. The walls of the cell are stone and the floor is cement. It is damp and there is no provision for heating. There is a hot air furnace in the basement, but it is not connected with the cell and it did not give satisfaction in any part of the building last winter. This unfortunate woman, who should not be locked up all the time, probably will be confined in this cell during the coming winter."

BOILS, PIMPLES, ABSCESSES

All Evidence of impure Blood and a Run-Down Condition.

When the blood becomes thin, poor, devitalized, nature cries out through such external and often painful evidence for help, and the safest, surest and most helpful remedy we know is Vinol.

This is because it is a combination of the two most world famed tonics—the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil (without the oil) and tonic iron for the blood. Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates a hearty appetite, purifies and enriches the blood, creates strength.

Mary Lang, of Altoona, Pa., says: "Ever since childhood I have been delicate, and my blood poor, thin, and devitalized. Nothing seemed to cure me until I took Vinol and it has built me up and made me strong."

We say positively there is nothing people. If it should fail in your blood and build up weak, run-down like Vinol to purify and enrich the case we will return your money. The Andrews Drug Co., Seymour, Ind.

DANGER OF WAR GROWING LESS

Nothing But Talk of Moderation in Europe.

STOCK JOBBERS USED SCARE

When Bogle Raised by Austria Was Found to Have No Basis in Fact the Fears of the Powers That They Should Be Plunged into a General War Passed Away Over Night and Peace Talk Began to Be Heard.

Athens, Nov. 27.—The Austrian minister here has been instructed from Vienna to protest against the pillage and violence which, it is alleged, was committed by the Greeks at Salonika.

London, Nov. 27.—Herr Prochaska, the Austrian consul at Pristina, who has been missing ever since that town was captured by the Servians, is safe, according to word received in Vienna. If this news is true there has ended an incident that might have done much to widen the breach between Austria and Serbia.

Throughout all Europe there swept a feeling of relaxation. The war scare died over night. In all the capitals where the day before they were calling extras that spelled "war" across their pages, men awakened to the fact that after all there was nothing much to fight about. A strip of seacoast in faraway Albania, the desire of little Serbia for an Adriatic seaport, and the jealousy of Austria were surely not matters important enough to plunge all Europe into war. So the scare that had been used by stock manipulators for the most part died the death and there was nothing but talk of moderation on the streets and in the chambers.

In the meantime from the little town near the Tchataldja lines where the plenipotentiaries of Bulgaria and the allies have sat them down to talk of peace while the armies rest, comes a story.

A statement that may have been authorized by the Bulgarian government has been telegraphed from Sofia. It says that Bulgaria is anxious to convince the world of the reasonableness of her earnest wish for peace. Bulgaria will be ready to make important modifications of the conditions. The Bulgars, says this statement, regard essentials as more important than forms, and are quite willing to spare the feelings of the Ottoman government as far as possible.

Subject to certain conditions, the withdrawal of the troops from the Tchataldja lines might not be insisted upon and the present demand for the surrender of Adrianople might be modified. If satisfactory guarantees were given that the garrison there would fight no more, the garrison might be allowed to march out.

Thus the statement ends: "Believing that the powers are sincerely desirous that peace be restored and maintained, Bulgaria and her allies are willing to do everything possible to bring about such a consummation."

In diplomatic circles here it is said that Turkey has presented to the Bulgarian plenipotentiaries as a basis for an agreement acceptable to Turkey the following terms:

First, no war indemnity. Second, the retention of all that territory belonging to Turkey in Europe bounded by the Meritza river, including the fortress of Adrianople.

Third, the maintenance of the authority of the sultan in Albania.

While they are talking of peace in the east, in Albania the Serbian army is coming daily nearer to Durazzo, the seaport that was the cause of the trouble between Austria and Serbia. They are now at Milota, but seven miles distant.

A dispatch from Constantinople hints that if the Austrians seize Durazzo ahead of the Servians or interfere with the Servian occupation of that place, Russia may retaliate by occupying Constantinople. The Russians are holding a strong force on the frontier ready to enter Albania and protect the Christians there if such action should prove to be necessary in view of the constant reports of massacres in the Bitlis, Van and Mush districts. Russia has notified the Porte of her intention.

Gamblers Held Up by Two Masked Men, Let It Go at That.

Calgary, Alberta, Nov. 27.—Two masked men held up a gambling house and after lining seventeen men up against the wall at the point of revolvers, obtained $12,000 in jewels and money. After cutting telephone wires the bandits made their escape.

Fearing arrest, the gamblers did not put any information in the hands of the police. One man attempted to hide his roll down the back of his neck and was tapped on the head with a gun by one of the highwaymen and knocked senseless.

BANK OF ENGLAND IS VICTIM OF ROBBERS

Lead Was Substituted for Good Gold.

London, Nov. 27.—The London, continental and Egyptian police are busy investigating a very daring and most mysterious robbery. The amount involved is about $50,000. Ten days ago the Bank of England dispatched 50,000 sovereigns with the usual precautions to the Credit Lyonnais at Alexandria, Egypt, and on the way 10,000 sovereigns were abstracted from the bags and lead substituted. The bags were guarded by armed detectives to the docks, where they were placed in the strong room of a steamer for Bremen. Upon being delivered at Alexandria the seals were apparently intact. The first case was all right. The second contained lead. The third and fourth also were all right, but the fifth contained more lead in place of the sovereigns. It is thought the robbers must have had duplicate seals of the Bank of England and the Credit Lyonnais, but how it was possible for them to have obtained them is what baffles everybody.

Olive Branch, Miss., Nov. 27.—In a revolver battle which followed an attempt of court officers to serve a judgment execution, four men were killed and three others wounded.

Sheriff W. T. Harris, G. W. Treadway, a wealthy farmer, and Treadway's two sons were killed and three deputy sheriffs were injured.

Another son of Treadway was captured after a long pursuit. When the officers came to the Treadway house to serve the papers they were invited to step inside. After they had entered they were attacked.

A BASEBALL TARGET.

Here is a splendid target for the back yard or vacant lot. It may be used for archery, or when practicing shooting with your air rifle or home-made cross-bow; but it will also be a good target to throw at, and for this purpose will be most useful during the early part of the baseball season when you are trying to get that pitching arm in condition. The target may be set up over an imaginary home-plate, at the proper height, so the center of the target will be on a line with your shoulder; then, when you take up your position in your pitcher's box you will face a mechanical umpire that will not fail to render you accurate decisions on your throws.

As you will see by the working drawings, the target is very simple to make. For material, you will require a box about 18 inches square and 5 inches deep, and a dozen tomato cans. It will be a simple matter to cut down a larger box if you cannot get one of the right dimensions at the grocery, and of course it will be which they are fastened, either by holding them one at a time over a lighted gas burner, or by placing them in a bonfire. Then remove the bottom boards of the box, and out of these and the cover boards cut four strips 1 1/4 inches wide, and two strips easy to find enough empty tin cans.

Remove the ends of the tomato cans, by melting the solder with two inches wide, of the right length to fit between the sides of the box. Fasten two of the 1 1/4-inch strips as at A (Fig. 1), with their edges flush with the edges of the sides, and so spaced that they will divide the inside of the box into three equal spaces. Next, fasten the two two-inch strips as shown at B (Fig. 1), crossing strips A at right angles, and spacing them so as to divide the inside of the box into three equal spaces. Then cross these strips at right angles with the two remaining 1 1/4-inch strips, as at C, placing them exactly on a line with strips A. Between the strips there will now be nine equal openings, and in each one of these a tomato can should be fastened. In case the cans are a trifle smaller than the openings, drive in wooden wedges between them and the strips.

After the cans have been fastened in place, fill in around them with wet earth, and pack this in solid with the end of a stick. If the sticks were cut of the widths directed, so that the front pair (C, Fig. 1) will set half an inch in from the front edges of the box, mud can be plastered over the latter sticks to conceal them. (Fig. 5.)

From the remaining three cans of the dozen procured, cut nine pieces of tin five inches square. Flatten these pieces, pierce two holes in each near one edge, and wire them to small staples driven into strips A, and into one of the edges of the boxes parallel to them, as shown in Figs. 3 and 4. These pieces of tin form the flaps to the backs of the tin can pockets, and scores may be painted upon them as suggested in Figs. 4 and 5. Inasmuch as whatever is thrown or shot through a pocket will strike the flap and force it part way open, it will be easy to at once see which pocket has been entered and what score has been made.

The strongest method of erecting the target is by means of two post supports placed at the sides, but one post will do if you bracket the target as shown in Fig. 5.

ANGERED THE GREAT JOVE

Earthworm's Disparaging Remark That Made Trouble for Festive Youths and Maidens.

The bees of Hybla were buzzing merrily about the palace on Olympus, threatening at times the lips of Venus and of Hebe, and the Zephyrs frolicked across the tessellated floors.

Jupiter yawned heavily and the doves of the love goddess flew away affrighted.

"What's doing among the earthworms?" he lazily demanded of Gany-mede. The boy put down his golden cups and stared across the sunny fields.

"They seem to be holding one of their festivals," he presently replied. "I see long lines of young men in black gowns and flat head coverings marching in and out of great stone buildings. Yes, and there are maidens in white, bearing flowers. And now I hear the murmur of voices and the cadence of song."

Jupiter yawned again. "Some silly rite, I suppose. Listen a moment, boy, and maybe you can catch a fragment of what they say."

There was a brief silence. "One of the young men has risen and is bowing. Ah, now I can hear what he says. He is telling the people how 'The Absurd Olympian God-Myth Retarded the Dawn of a Higher Civilization.'"

"What's that?" cried Jupiter, and he arose so suddenly that the Dryad fan-wavers drew back in terror. "Who's he calling absurd! Here, push the thunderbolts this way. Gimme one with a short fuse."

The master of Olympus seized the metal tube and flung it downward, and Vulcan struck the thunder plate a crashing blow. Again and yet again the thunder crashed and the sky hung black across the Thessalian plains.

Gany-mede roared with laughter. "The earthworms are running wildly," he cried. "The young men have scattered, and the white-robed maidens are soaked!"

Jupiter settled back in his cushions. "I'll teach 'em to let the god myth severely alone," he muttered.

And presently the sun shone again and the bees of Hybla buzzed merrily. —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bristow and Golf.

Sam Blythe of the Saturday Evening Post says that Senator Bristow of Kansas is so tall that when he plays golf he uses clubs a foot longer than those ordinarily used, and that "when he hits the ball it goes a mile—when he hits it."

Which recalls a story told on Bristow when he first fell before the temptation to play golf. He wanted to know how the game was played. "Well, you see," said his instructor, "you put the ball right here, just this way. Now, see that mound over there about a mile and a half? Well, on that little mound there is a little hole, and the play is to put the ball into that hole in one stroke."

Bristow let drive with the same force that he had acquired in splitting rails in Kentucky, and the party followed the ball. When they came up to it they found, to the surprise of everyone but the Kansas senator, that the ball was within three inches of the hole.

"Now, what do you think of that!" exclaimed Bristow sorrowfully. "I missed it!"—Kansas City Times.

JACK JOHNSON'S NEMESIS

Mrs. F. Cameron-Falconet, Whose Daughter Was in Fighter's Power.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Lucile Cameron, the Minneapolis girl, who was involved in the federal prosecution of Jack Johnson, the pugilist, was released by Judge Carpenter of the federal court on bond of $1,000, signed by the girl herself and her mother, Mrs. F. Cameron-Falconet. Mrs. Falconet said she did not intend to return to Minneapolis, but would go south with her daughter.

STOCK PEDDLING IS ATTACKED IN COURT

Distinguished Defendants Bitterly Arraigned.

New York, Nov. 27.—In connection with the promotion and operation of several mining companies, the men being charged with the fraudulent use of the United States mails, the trial of Julian Hawthorne, Josiah Quincy, ex-mayor of Boston, Dr. William J. Morton and Albert Freeman is in full progress.

"They were gambling with the public's money," said Assistant District Attorney Smith in opening for the prosecution. "If they had stumbled across silver they would have gained but if anybody was to lose it was the public."

If the evidence indicated anything it was that Albert Freeman, who has a reputation for peddling stocks, was the guiding spirit in the organization and management of the company, and that ex-Mayor Quincy was closely associated with him. Mr. Hawthorne was the literary expert. Apparently Freeman, through a stock selling arrangement with the companies, got his money first and what was left over went to the companies.

EXTRA CELLS

Are Needed in Dread Death House at Sing Sing.

New York, Nov. 27.—The four gunmen, Gyp the Blood, Lefty Louie, Dago Frank and Whitey Lewis, are now lodged in the death house at Sing Sing. Occupying adjoining cells on an upper tier in the death chamber, they can look directly down into the cell on the opposite side of the room in which Charles H. Becker is sitting.

They can look, too, directly upon the little green door through which they must all pass to their final reckoning for the killing of Herman Rosenthal some time during the week of Jan. 6, unless the decision of Justice Goff is reversed by a new trial.

The coming of the gunmen-brings the number of inmates of the death house up to seventeen, which is as many as can be accommodated there. For any other prisoners who may have to be lodged in the house, Warden Kennedy is having built extra cells in one corner of the death house yard.

They Returned the Watch.

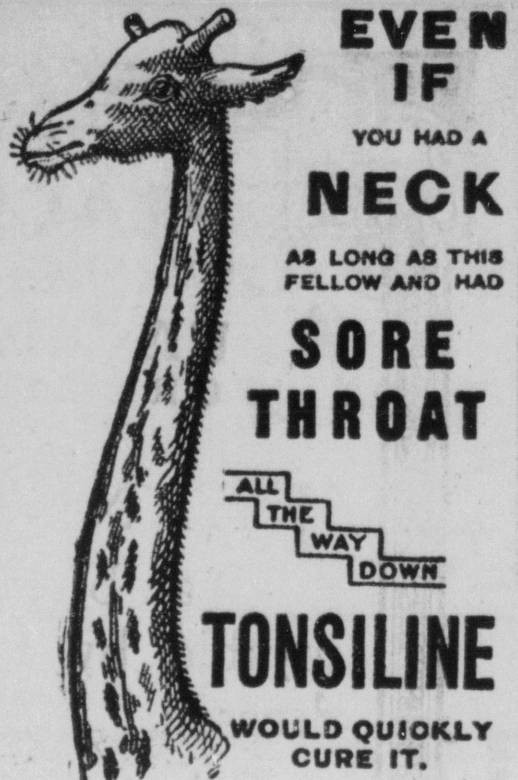

Huntington, Ind., Nov. 27.—Alleging that he was held up in the main street of Huntington, Harry Bookholtz made complaint to the police that he had been robbed of $145 in cash and checks. Bookholtz said the robbers had his watch, but when he told them it was a gift from his dead mother they returned it.

Herodotus tells of an ingenious ruse employed to carry an important message through the lines of the enemy. Calling his trustiest servant to him, he ordered that the man's hair be shaven off. He then pricked the desired message on the scalp of the slave and, waiting until his hair was grown out, dispatched him upon the errand. The messenger passed safely through the lines, and when he reached Aristagoras his head was again shaved and the message read.

A thousand tongues could not express the gratitude of Mrs. J. E. Cox, of Joliet, Ill., for her wonderful deliverance from an awful fate. "Typhoid pneumonia had left me with a dreadful cough," she writes. "Sometimes I had such awful coughing spells I thought I would die. Linnaeus and His Works.

How much sleep do men need? Jeremy Taylor was content with three hours. Baxter with four. Wesley with six. Bismarck and Gladstone needed eight. But Goethe, Napoleon, Mirabeau and Humboldt professed that they could get along very well with less. Linnaeus, the naturalist, was one of those who robbed themselves of sleep during their earlier years and made up for it later in life. In his wakeful periods during his old age he would retire to his library, take down one of his own works and read it with a sigh of regret. "How very fine!" he would murmur. Shetland Wool.

A curious historical legend is connected with Shetland wool. Over 300 years ago a man of war belonging to the Spanish armada was wrecked on one of the islands. The sailors who escaped, taught the natives to make brilliant dyes from roots which they found, resembling those used for like purposes in Spain. Those persons who now wear bright Shetland knit comforters are unconsciously wearing mementos of the "Invincible" armada. —London Standard.

Preventing a Collision.

When warships are steaming in fleet formation through fog it becomes necessary to provide some marking by means of which the vessels may maintain their places in line and at the desired distance from each other. The usual method adopted by British fleets when caught in a fog is the trailing of a buoy in the water behind each vessel. This buoy makes a flapping noise, which is easily heard by the lookout on the ship following as well as leaving a wake discernible to the eye.—Popular Mechanics.

The Root of Evil

CHAPTER XXIV. The White Messenger.

IN spite of Bivens' protest Stuart returned to New York on the first train the morning after the coaching party reached the house.

"Stay a week longer," the little man urged, "and I'll go with you. We'll go together, all of us, in my car. I'm getting worse here every day. I've got to get back to my doctors in New York."

"I'm sorry, Cal," he answered quickly, "but I must leave at once." Nan allowed him to go without an effort to change his decision. A strange calm had come over her. She drove to the station with him in silence. He began to wonder what it meant.

As he stepped from the machine she extended her hand, with a tender smile, and said in low tones:

"Until we meet again."

He pressed it gently and was gone.

He reached New York thoroughly exhausted and blue, but the sight of Harriet seated on the stoop of the old home by the square watching a crowd of children play brought a smile back to his haggard face.

"They've come to honor me with their good wishes on my voyage," she said.

"What voyage?" he asked in surprise.

"Oh, you didn't know. I've an engagement to sing on the continent this summer. The news came the day you left. Isn't that fine? I sail next week."

A sudden idea struck him.

"Let me go with you, girlie?"

"Oh, Jim, if you only would, I'd be in heaven!"

"I will!" he said with decision.

"You've booked your passage?"

"Yes, but I'll change it to suit you."

He found business which required a week and booked his passage with Harriet on a Cunarder which sailed in ten days. A week later Nan and Bivens returned to their New York home. The papers were full of stories of his failing health.

Two days after her arrival Nan telephoned to Stuart.

"You must come up to see Cal tonight," she said earnestly. "He is asking for you."

"Is he really dangerously ill?" Stuart interrupted.

"It's far more serious than the papers suspect. You'll come?"

"Yes, early tomorrow morning. I've an important engagement tonight that will keep me until 12 o'clock. I'm sailing for Europe day after tomorrow."

A sudden click at the other end and he was cut off. His experienced ear told him it was not an accident.

It was just dawn when Stuart's telephone rang and he leaped from bed, startled at the unusual call.

"Well, well," he cried in quick, impatient tones, "who is it? What is the matter?"

"For heaven's sake come at once. Cal was taken dangerously ill at 2 o'clock. The doctors have been with him every moment. He doesn't get any better. He keeps calling for you."

"I'll be there in half an hour—three-quarters at the most."

"Thank you," she gasped, and hung up her receiver.

Stuart's cab whirled uptown through the rivers of humanity pouring down to begin again the round of another day. In all the hurrying thousands not one knew or cared a straw whether the man of millions in his silent palace on the drive lived or died.

The house was evidently in hopeless confusion. Servants wandered in every direction without order. Doctor after doctor passed in and out, and the sickening odor of medicines filled the air. A group of newspaper reporters stood at the foot of the grand stairway.

Nan stood shivering at the head of the stairs, pale, disheveled, her dark eyes wide and staring with a new expression of terror in their depths.

"How is he, Nan?"

"Worse," she stammered through chattering teeth. "The doctors say he can't possibly live. He has been calling for me for the last hour. I—can't—go!"

"Why?"

"I'm afraid!"

He took her hand. It was cold and he felt a tremor run through her body at his touch.

"Come, come, Nan, you're not a silly child. I'm ashamed of you. If Cal is calling, go to him at once. You must see him."

Shivering in silence she led Stuart to the door of Bivens' room and tied to her own.

On a magnificent bed of gleaming ebony inlaid with rows of opals, thousands of opals. Stuart found the little shriveled form. The swarthy face was white and drawn, the hard thin lips fallen back from two rows of smooth teeth in pitiful, fevered weakness. The shifting eyes caught sight of Stuart.

"It's awfully good of you to come up here so soon," he began feebly.

"I've some plans I want you to carry out for me right away. You see I never thought before of the world as a place where there were so many men and women sick and suffering—thousands and tens and hundreds of thousands. These doctors say that every night in New York alone there are half a million people sick or bending over the beds of loved ones who are suffering, and two hundred die every day."

He paused for breath, and the black eyes stared at his friend.

"Jim, I can't die! I haven't lived! I've got to get up from here and do some things I've meant to do—all those sick people—I've got to do something for them. I'm going to build palaces for the lame, the halt, the sick, the blind. I'm going to gather the great men of science from the ends of the earth and set them to work to lift this shadow from the world."

"I'll make good. Do you understand? Ten millions each!"

A sudden pain seized and convulsed his frail body and Stuart called the doctors from the next room.

They stood by in helpless sympathy.

"Can't you stop this pain?" the financier gasped in anger. "What are you here for? Am I not able to buy enough morphine to stop this hellish agony?"

His family doctor bent and said:

"Your heart action is too low just now, Mr. Bivens, you can't stand it."

"Well, I can't stand this! Give it to me, I tell you!"

The doctor took a hypodermic syringe, filled it with water and injected it into his arm.

While Stuart watched the pitiful trick, his eye wandered over the magnificent trappings of the room.

"What irony of fate!" he exclaimed, under his breath.

The sufferer stared and beckoned to Stuart.

Handing him a key which he drew from beneath his pillow he cried:

"Unlock the right hand top drawer of that safe. Jim—the door is open. Hand me those bundles of stocks and bonds and call those doctors."

Stuart complied with his request and Bivens spread the brilliantly colored papers on the white covering of his bed, while the doctors drew near.

"Listen now, gentlemen," he began, still gasping with pain. "You're our greatest living doctors. I'm told. Well, I'm not willing to die. I won't die—do you hear? I'm only forty-nine years old. You see here thirty millions in gilt edged stocks and bonds. Well, there are three of you. I'll give you ten millions each to take this stone off of my breast that's smothering me and give me five years more of life."

The three men of science stood with folded, helpless arms and made no effort to keep back the tears. They had seen many men die. It was nothing new—and yet the pity and pathos of this strange appeal found their way to the soul of each. They never envied a millionaire again.

They retired for another consultation. Stuart replaced the papers and gave the key to Bivens.

"Ask Nan to come here a minute," he said feebly.

Stuart walked to the door and whispered to a servant. When he returned to the bedside the dying man looked up into his face gratefully.

"You don't know how it helps me to have you near, Jim, old boy. I'm lonely. Nan I guess is ill and broken down. I've lavished millions on her. I've given her all I possess in my will, but somehow we never found happiness. If I could only have been sure of the deep, sweet, unselfish love of one human soul on this earth! If I could only have won a girl's heart when I was poor. But I was rich, and I've always wondered whether she really loved me for my own sake. At least I've always thanked God for you. You've been a real friend. Our hearts were young together and you stood by me when—I was—poor!"

An hour later when the covering was turned back from the dead body Stuart saw that the smooth little cold hand had gripped the key to his treasures in a last instinctive grasp.

He looked again at the lump of cold clay and wondered what was passing in the soul of the woman who was now the heir of all his millions.

Why had she shown such strange and abject terror over his death—an event she had foreseen and desired?

A horrible suspicion suddenly flashed through his mind. He determined to know at once.

As he had feared, Nan refused point blank to enter the death chamber and asked him to come to her boudoir.

He found her standing by a window, apparently calm. Stuart looked at her a moment with a curious detached interest. Suddenly aware of his presence she turned.

"At last, at last!" she cried in low broken accents. "Oh, dear God, how long I've waited and despaired! At last we may belong to each other forever—body and soul! Nothing else matters now, does it? We shall forget all the blank hideous years; you'll forget it, won't you, dearest? You'll forgive me—now—say that you will?"

"I've long ago forgiven, Nan, but tell me about this sudden attack. You were with him when he was stricken?"

"Yes, I took the nurse's place at midnight; I couldn't sleep."

"How long did you stay with him?"

"Until I called you."

"And you gave him the medicine in the absence of the nurse?"

"Only one," she answered, hesitatingly, "a particular kind the doctor had not prescribed, but which he asked for to relieve his pain."

"He asked you for medicine, Nan?"

he went on remorselessly. "A poisonous powder—and you gave him one?"

"Yes."

"And you're sure you gave him but one?"

"He was begging for two—I might have given them both—it's possible, of course."

He gazed at her with a look of pity.

"I know that you did, Nan, know it as certainly as if I stood by your side and saw you press it to his lips."

"You know, Jim?" she cried feebly, her head drooping low.

"And you feel no remorse?"

"Why should I? His death seemed only a question of days."

"From the bottom of my heart I pity you!" Stuart broke in softly. "The state will never reach your act with the law. But the big thing is you have no consciousness of guilt and feel no remorse because you have no soul. You have only desires and impulses. That's why you couldn't wait for me to earn my fortune honestly and so betrayed me for gold. I can see it all now. Your beauty has blinded me."

"For God's sake, Jim," she cried fiercely, "don't—don't talk like that! I can't endure it! You don't mean, you can't mean that you are going to turn from me now, just when I've found your love! I did it for you!"

Stuart looked at her through a mist of tears.

"The spell is broken, Nan, dear; our romance is ended. I don't say it in pride or anger; I say it in sorrow—a great deep, pitying sorrow that cuts and hurts!"

The woman understood. She had at last passed out of his world. Only the memory of a girl he had once loved and idealized remained, and that memory was now unapproachable. The living woman was no longer the figure in the mental picture. The struggle was over.

He extended his hand, clasped hers, bowed and kissed it, turned and walked quickly toward the door. With a half smothered cry she followed.

"Jim!"

He paused and turned again, facing her with a look of infinite sadness.

"Remember," she said brokenly, "I never expect to see you again—we cannot meet after this. I am looking into your dear face now with the anguish of a broken heart strangling me. You cannot leave like this—we have been too much to each other."

He took her in his arms and held her close.

"Forgive me, dear," he whispered, reverently kissing her as he would have pressed the lips of the dead. "I didn't mean to be cruel—goodbye."

The door of the great house softly closed and he was gone. A few moments later the servants found her limp form lying in a swoon on the floor.

Strangers no longer live in the cottage Stuart built on the hills. A jaunty sailboat nods at the buoy near the water's edge. The drone of bees from the fruit trees in full bloom on the terraces promise a luscious harvest in the summer and fall. The lawn is a wilderness of flowers and shimmering green. The climbing roses on the southeastern side of the house have covered it to the very eaves of the roof. Stuart has just cut them away from Harriet's window because they interfered with her view of the bay and sea and towering hills they love so well. And the crooning of a little mother over a baby's cradle fills the home with a music sweeter to its builder than any note ever heard in grand opera.

DOCTORS FAILED AGAIN

THE GREAT REMEDY SAVED HER.

I am now in very fine condition, thanks to your medicine, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Ten years ago I was taken with kidney and liver troubles and it becoming very severe, I started to take different medicines supposed to cure these diseases and also doctored with well known physicians, but nothing seemed to help or cure me and all the time I was failing very fast until I became confined to my bed. One day I received a sample of Swamp-Root and noticed an improvement immediately after taking same. I then bought a fifty cent bottle and the improvement was so wonderful that I continued taking Swamp-Root until now am in such fine condition that I am running a rooming house with notion store in connection. I highly recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to any one having kidney or liver trouble in any of its various forms.

Yours truly,

Mrs. Manda Sheets,
Fremont, Ohio.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 24th day of October, 1911.

Letter to Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince any one. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. Fifty Years Ago Today. Nov. 27.

A Federal army under General U. S. Grant was at Holly Springs, Miss., an important railroad center on the Mississippi Central, which the Confederates abandoned. Grant proposed to continue on to Vicksburg. He had 30,000 men.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

Grevy announced that he would resign the presidency of France on Dec. 1. Home rule riot in Limerick; police used bayonets on the populace.

HELPFUL WORDS

From a Seymour Citizen.

Is your back lame and painful. Does it ache especially after exertion? Is there a soreness in the kidney region?

These symptoms suggest weak kidneys.

If so there is danger in delay. Weak kidneys get fast weaker. Give your trouble prompt attention. Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Your neighbors use and recommend them.

Read this Seymour testimony.

Mrs. George Kramer, 206 S. Broadway, Seymour, Ind., says: "A member of my family was greatly distressed by disordered kidneys and was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills. I publicly recommended this remedy in 1910 and at this time I am glad to still hold Doan's Kidney Pills in high esteem." I confirm my former testimony.

"When Your Back is Lame—Remember the Name." Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Kramer had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c at all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Pick the Fruit In Time

That is one of the secrets of success in fruit growing. If left too late the fruit rots before it can be marketed.

This man is a successful orange grower because he picks his fruit BEFORE IT IS QUITE RIPE.

That is exactly what every successful man must do in this world BEFOREHAND.

It is now your business to be a successful Christmas shopper. To do so you must be beforehand in your buying.

That means you must shop early.

Pluck those Christmas bargains from the tree today.

Do not wait until too late and lose your crop.

Otherwise you will be picking lemons and not oranges.

Don't get a Christmas lemon or give one to anybody else.

That might sour your disposition or theirs.

Shopping early will leave a sweet taste in your mouth. Learn a lesson from the orange grower and pick your Christmas fruit on time.

DO IT NOW.

Helps a Judge In Bad Fix.

Justice Eli Cherry, of Gillis Mills, Tenn., was plainly worried. A bad sore on his leg had baffled several doctors and had long resisted all remedies. "I thought it was a cancer," he wrote. We Are Thankful

The Day of Thanksgiving reminds us of a multitude of things for which we should be grateful. The past year has been one continued round of success for us in a business way. Hardly a day has passed that we have not heard expressions of confidence in this store; hardly a day has passed without bringing us new patrons; always there has been the feeling with customers that they could secure better values right here in this store than by going outside, or risking the disappointments incident to mail order buying. We have always sought to treat our people fairly, giving them the best values possible and standing, personally, back of every article sold.

That the people appreciate our efforts gives us real cause for THANKSGIVING.

This confidence of our patrons has enabled us to go into the wholesale markets with greater assurance and buy more liberally and generously of the best in men's apparel so that we are prepared to show you a most tempting array of Fine Clothing and an amazing collection of the season's newest haberdashery.

We have planned to make this store the one best Christmas Store in Seymour in which to buy gifts for men. We want you to come in and see how well we have succeeded in our efforts to please you.
